The project of building patterns. Constructive deconstruction.

The artists have been asked to define and combine the two concepts of architecture and texture in order to describe, enhance and disclose the patterns and the ideas behind an open architectural project. Each one has been working independently, offering different point of view to the ideas and shaping the concepts very differently.

From a classic building to brain cells architecture's patterns and vice versa you are invite to walk this unique experimental communal library. As a group in this project we believe in the strength of mutual interaction as a fundamental in the creative process. We have been meeting and discussing, as equals, sharing, helping and in this way enriching each other's work. The action of discerning before creating came from our need to better understand the matters we were discussing, disclosing and analyzing. Our goal is to put our experiences in common in order to develop a project that examines how a project of architecture becomes real and then can be transformed again after a work of deconstructing and filtering through art. The concepts in this process change shapes, from the world of ideas they recreate their form and texture, they may become alien and bizarre but stay unified by something that in a way still keep the new born together, here it is, the light we like to disclose. The result is a path of visions that come from the same process.

This is a path that led from two-dimensions to tri-dimensions, and back. Geometry, balance and pattern transform and get reflected, transformed and developed sometimes on a canvas, sometimes paper or photograph. Depending on the medium we choose to use.

The gap between the stages of this project describes our imaginative steps forward and became a circle.

The Opening Reception will be on Friday, February 10th from 6.00pm to 9.00pm
